

There are, however, some limitations of the present study. First, although an important issue, our study did not measure strain in the proximal femur during the maximum vertical jump. Bassey et al. (3) measured the compressive axial forces in an instrumented massive femoral implant and